FUND MANAGER'S REPORT

It is a boon to money markets that the yield curve's shape has flattened. Interest rates differential between short and long tenors have whittled down considerably with the ascent of the front end. And because of the general view that interest rates will stay higher for longer, money markets stand to benefit from this with generous high rates at the short end. This trend will likely continue until the last quarter of the year as the U.S. economy is still very strong even after the rate hikes effected by the Federal Reserve.

Description of the Benchmark

The par yield curve, which relates the par yield on a security to its time to maturity, is based on the closing market bid prices on the most recently auctioned Treasury securities in the over-the-counter market. The par yields are derived from input market prices, which are indicative quotations obtained by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York at approximately 3:30 PM each business day.

Key Characteristics

- 3-month (91 days) tenor
- prevailing par yield curve rate on the 91-day U.S. treasury bill
- traded in the biggest and most efficient bond market
- yield accurately reflects prevailing economic conditions

Relation to the fund's objectives/investment strategies

The fund is designed for conservative investors with dollar placements who desire a stable source of income but can also tolerate a small amount of risk to earn a little extra return. Change in the Benchmark

The amendment to the Fund's benchmark was approved by the LANDBANK Board of Directors on 21 November 2022 through on No. 22-851.
